

Acknowledgements

 <https://doi.org/10.1075/aicr.50.02ack>

Pages xi–xii of

Quantum Closures and Disclosures: Thinking-together postphenomenology and quantum brain dynamics

Gordon G. Globus †

[Advances in Consciousness Research, 50]

2003. xxii, 198 pp.

© John Benjamins Publishing Company

This electronic file may not be altered in any way. For any reuse of this material written permission should be obtained from the publishers or through the Copyright Clearance Center (for USA: www.copyright.com).

For further information, please contact rights@benjamins.nl or consult our website at benjamins.com/rights

Acknowledgements

I have received much help in trying to understand quantum brain dynamics. I thank Kunio Yasue for his depth of understanding, ability to explain, and greatness of person. Intensive line-by-line discussion of crucial portions of text with Scott Hagan were most helpful and nourished my courage to explore unvisited regions of discourse space. I greatly appreciate Giuseppe Vitiello's deep insights into Hiroomi Umezawa's work and his willingness to respond to my questions. Donald Mender was always available for stimulating discussion when I bogged down. I thank Elena Bezzubova for reviving my spirit and intellect, as well as many helpful comments. These good colleagues should not be held responsible for any misreadings of quantum theory.

The ones who question have set aside all curiosity; their seeking yearns for the abgrund, wherein they know the oldest ground.

(Martin Heidegger, Contributions to Philosophy (From Enowning), p. 10)

– But maybe it's just a residue, a dream, a bit of dream left over, an echo of the night that other theater, those knocks from without ...

(Jacques Derrida, Dissemination, p. 171)

... the origin of the thermal degree of freedom in our world could be due to the presence of other universes which are totally dissociated from our world, though they share the vacuum with our world.

(Hiroomi Umezawa, Advanced Field Theory, p. 34)

God is a Lobster, or a double pincer, a double bind ... each stratum is double.

(Gilles Deleuze & Félix Guattari, A Thousand Plateaus, p. 40)