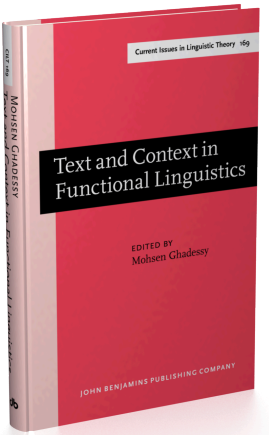
Current Issues in Linguistic Theory
169

Notes on the Contributors

https://doi.org/10.1075/cilt.169.02not



Pages ix–x of
Text and Context in Functional Linguistics
Edited by Mohsen Ghadessy
[Current Issues in Linguistic Theory, 169]
1999. xviii, 340 pp.

© John Benjamins Publishing Company

This electronic file may not be altered in any way. For any reuse of this material written permission should be obtained from the publishers or through the Copyright Clearance Center (for USA: www.copyright.com).

For further information, please contact rights@benjamins.nl or consult our website at benjamins.com/rights

John Benjamins Publishing Company

Notes on the Contributors

Wendy Bowcher is Associate Professor in the Department of Foreign Languages and Literature at Tokyo Gakugei University, Japan. Her research interests include context and language, English intonation, and applications of SFL to TESOL. She is currently completing a doctoral dissertation on the relation between context, language and institutionalisation focusing on radio sports commentary.

Carmel Cloran spent some years at Macquarie University working with Ruqaiya Hasan on her semantic variation project and teaching systemic functional linguistics. She taught semantics in the Department of English Language and Literature at the National University of Singapore. She is currently back in Australia working on research into aspects of child language development, and developing "student friendly" texts on (i) some discourse analytic tools, and (ii) the use of networks in linguistic investigation. She co-edited (with David Butt and Geoff Williams) a collection of Hasan's papers entitled Ways of saying: Ways of Meaning, published by Cassell in 1996.

Mohsen Ghadessy is a Professor in the Department of English Language and Applied Linguistics at the University of Brunei Darussalam. He has taught English language and applied linguistics courses in a number of countries including USA, UK, Iran, Singapore and Hong Kong. His research interests include language teaching, written registers, and thematic organisation. His recent publications include three edited books, Registers of Written English, Pinter, 1988; Register Analysis: Theory and Practice, Pinter, 1993 and Thematic Development in English Texts, Cassell, 1995.

Michael Halliday is Emeritus Professor of Linguistics (University of Sydney). His research interests cover every area of language from social context right through to phonology. His most recent major publications are Writing Science: Literacy and Discursive Power (co-authored with J. R. Martin), Falmer Press, 1993; Language in a Changing World, Occasional Papers No. 13 ALAA, 1993; and Introduction to Functional Grammar (2nd edition), Edward Arnold, 1994. He has received honorary degrees from several universities in Europe and Asia.

Ruqaiya Hasan is Professor Emerita of Linguistics (Macquarie University). Her research interests include stylistics, discourse analysis, lexis and grammar, semantic networks and socio-semantic variation. Her most recent publications include "Contexts for Meaning" in Language, Communication and Meaning, edited by J.E. Alatis, Georgetown University Press, 1993; "On Social Conditions for Semeotic Mediation: The Genesis of Mind in Society" in Knowledge and pedagogy: The Sociology of Basil Bernstein edited by A.R. Sadovnik, Ablex, 1995. She has most recently edited Literacy in Society (with Geoff Williams), Longman, 1996; On Subject and Theme: A Discourse Functional Perspective(with Peter H. Fries) and Functional Descriptions (with Carmel Cloran and David Butt), both published by Benjamins, 1995 and 1996, respectively.

Dr. J. R. Martin is currently Associate Professor of Linguistics at the University of Sydney. His research interests include systemic theory, functional grammar, discourse semantics, register, genre, multimodality and critical discourse analysis, focusing on English and Tagalog — with special reference to the transdisciplinary fields of educational linguistics and social semiotics. Relevant publications include English Text: System and Structure, Benjamins, 1992; Writing Science: Literacy and Discursive Power (With M.A.K. Halliday), Falmer, 1993; Working with Functional Grammar (with C. Matthiessen & C. Painter), Arnold, 1997; Genre and Institutions: Social Processes in the Workplace and School (edited with F. Christie), Cassell, 1997; Reading Science: Critical and Functional Perspectives on Discourse of Science (edited with R. Veel), Routledge, 1998.

Dr. Michael O'Donnell is a Research Fellow in the Department of Artificial Intelligence at the University of Edinburgh. He completed his Ph.D. at the University of Sydney, 1994. He has worked on several projects involving machine implementation of linguistic theory.

Geoff Thompson is a lecturer in the Applied English Language Studies Unit of the Department of English Language and Literature at the University of Liverpool. His research interests centre on projection (reported speech), evaluation in discourse, and interaction in both written and spoken text. Recent publications include Reporting, 1994 and Introducing Functional Grammar, 1997. He has co-edited (with Susan Hunston) a collection of papers on Evaluation in Text: Authorial Stance and the Construction of Discourse, 1999.