ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It is with pleasure and gratitude that I acknowledge my indebtedness to the persons and institutions who have supported me in writing these volumes.

I have profited greatly from discussions with my colleagues, coworkers, and students who, at one time or other during its ten-year existence, belonged to the Berlin research group on Theory of Language and Theory of Grammars. I have profited just as much from their own contributions, both published and unpublished. If I do not single anybody out by name it is to pay homage to a cooperative effort in which ideas and suggestions are hard to trace to an individual source after they have borne fruit.

I am indebted to many colleagues both in Germany and abroad whose critical interest in my ideas made me think harder.

In developing my framework and in writing these volumes I was supported by the Freie Universität Berlin through repeated leaves of absence and through official recognition of the Berlin research group. Volume I was supported in part by a research grant from the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft (1981/82).

I wish to thank both the editor and the publisher of CILT for an incredible amount of patience in waiting for the volumes on Integrational Linguistics. Special thanks are due to Mrs. Annemarie Sandhof for her fast and efficient typing of the greater part of Vols I and III. Klaus Fenchel has assisted me with compiling the indexes of Vol. I.

Most of all I am indebted to my family. These volumes are dedicated to those who suffered most because of them.
