The editors would like to acknowledge the help we received in the preparation of this book. The Faculty of Oriental Studies, University of Oxford, provided generous financial support for copy-editing and formatting. In the course of that, we were invaluablely helped by the following Oxford students who worked hard on turning the disparate manuscripts into this book: Madeleine Brook, Patrick Lavelli, Tuukka Toivonen, James Webb and Asa Yoneda. Every time we created or developed IT related problems, Greg Jennings, Ross Wackett and Matt Brock of the IT Department of Hertford College, Oxford, came to the rescue and solved them. A congenial environment for manuscript editing was provided by the Hôtel du Manoir St-Denis in Montreal. We are very grateful to Wes Jacobsen for his detailed, perceptive, and helpful comments on the entire manuscript which helped us improve it greatly. Sven Osterkamp made important corrections and suggestions to several chapters at a late stage of the editing process. We would like to thank the series editor Professor E.F.K. Koerner for his interest in the project and suggestions on the book. Finally, we owe a big thanks to Anke de Looper of John Benjamins who gently guided us safely through the production process.
