Foreword & Acknowledgments

The present volume contains selected papers from the 14th International Morphology Meeting held in Budapest on 13–16 May 2010. The conference was focused on three main topics: (1) the role of language use in morphological theorizing (frequency, analogy, emergence, etc.), (2) constructions in morphology, and (3) possibilities of a modern morphological typology. The papers dealing with constructions will appear in a separate volume. And, though quite a few papers discussed topics that may have typological consequences, none of them was explicitly devoted to linguistic typology. The selection of papers presented in this volume all address problems of language use in one or another sense.

The Morphology Meeting was organized under the auspices of the Research Institute for Linguistics of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences.
