Preface

This volume arose out of the Eighth Conference on Historical News Discourse (CHINED VIII), which took place in June 2022 in Augsburg, Germany. CHINED is a fruitful meeting ground for all researchers interested in historical news writing and the development of the press. While linguists are the mainstay of CHINED, the conference series has also attracted participants from the fields of history, communication studies, and journalism. Thus, volumes based on these conferences, including this one, tend to combine perspectives from various academic disciplines to a greater or lesser extent.

The articles contained here profited from the lively discussions at the conference and from the valuable feedback of two anonymous reviewers. I wish to thank the reviewers for their time and effort as well as the contributors for their careful revisions. In preparing the volume for publication, the editorial assistance of Elena Mayer and Lena Hilbert was much appreciated. Finally, I would like to thank Isja Conen at Benjamins for her support and patience.
