This book is a revised version of my doctoral dissertation in linguistics, which I defended at the University of Tromsø in May 2006. I want to thank my supervisor Peter Svenonius, who has shown deep interest in the topics at the heart of this dissertation, demonstrated patience almost beyond limits, and his door has always been open for discussion of trivial as well as more difficult problems. I am also indebted to Gillian Ramchand, for discussion of theoretical as well as more banal issues. In addition, I want to express my thanks to the external members of my committee, Tor Åfarli and Heidi Harley, for useful discussions and suggestions as to how to make this work more consistent.

I also want to thank Christer Platzack and Halldór Sigurðsson, who both encouraged me to publish this dissertation, and also to Werner Abraham and Elly van Gelderen for showing enthusiasm and interest in my book. I am also greatly indebted to Gunnar Hrafn Hrafnbjargarson for his magician-like knowledge of \LaTeX ; thanks a lot for helping me with the layout of this book.

Last, but not least: thanks to all my friends and family, and especially to Thomas, for showing great patience with me throughout the process of writing this work, and for making me understand that “det ordner seg” (everything will be fine).
