Acknowledgements

There are several people without whom this study would not have been possible. First and foremost, I would like to thank Anita Steube, Kai Alter, and Bob Ladd for their support, guidance, feedback, and advice at all stages. Further, I am indebted to Stefan Baumann, Bettina Braun, Johannes Dölling, Katharina Hartmann, Martin Schäfer, and especially Denisa Lenertová for their insightful comments and suggestions, for the time they generously spent with me answering my questions, and for the expertise they provided. Denisa Lenertová's assistance with the experimental work reported in Chapter 6 was particularly helpful. This work also benefited from suggestions and corrections made by an anonymous reviewer.

I am very grateful to Elly van Gelderen and Werner Abraham for giving me the opportunity to publish this book in the Linguistics Today series and to Kees Vaes from John Benjamins for his help in preparing the manuscript for publication.

Many thanks to those who participated in the experiments, and to Tracey S. Rosenberg and Dave Gorman for correcting what I thought was English. I do not know which of the two tasks is more annoying.

Finally, I would like to express my gratitude to both my colleagues in the DFG graduate programme “Universality and Diversity: Linguistic Structures and Processes” and at the Linguistics Department of the University of Leipzig, as well as to my parents and my friends. Without some of them, I would not have finished this book yet. Without others, I would have finished it earlier. I am equally grateful to all of them.
