Acknowledgements

As a learner of Quechua who fell in love with the language first as a child but was only able to acquire it as an adult, I am grateful to all Quechua native speakers who have shared their language with me throughout the years in places such as Cuzco, Chitapamapa, Ulcumayo, and Lamas. Special thanks to Vidal Carbajal Solís and Hipólito Peralta Ccama for their invaluable help as language consultants. Without their patience and generous sharing of their knowledge of the language, this book could never have been written.

For discussions on different topics covered in this book, I would like to thank Mark Baker, Jimmy Bruno, José Camacho, Ellen Courtney, Veneeta Dayal, José Elías-Ulloa, Carlos Fassola, Jane Grimshaw, Carlo Linares, Pieter Muysken, Roger Schwarzschild, and the audiences at the Linguistics Colloquium at USC, the Spring 2009 Rutgers St@r meeting, WISCLA 2008 and CILLA 2009. Special thanks to María Luisa Zubizarreta for her detailed comments on an earlier version of the manuscript. For help with Praat I would like to thank Jose Elías Ulloa and Jimmy Bruno and for proofediting I would like to thank Jimmy Bruno and Peter Fabian. For editing suggestions I would also like to thank the editors of the Linguistik Aktuell Series.

I would also like to thank Balbina Aruahuanca Callisana, speaker of Quechua, Aymara, and Spanish, and the first trilingual person I met, for teaching me some words in Quechua when I was child. Special thanks to Irma Alvarado and my family in Peru and to Marina Camacho in Spain. Finally, I would like to thank José, Yésica, and Lucía for their love and their infinite patience.
