Acknowledgements

The contents and quality of this book greatly benefited from the expertise of a number of linguists, especially Heidi Harley, Andrew Carnie, Rudolph Troike, Antxon Olarrea, Elly van Gelderen and an anonymous reviewer, who provided insightful comments throughout. I am indebted to Jaume Mateu who once suggested to me that I should include Hiaki as part of the languages described in this book. Following his advice was one of the best decisions I made regarding the research presented in this book.

Many thanks to all the Spanish and English speakers that helped me with the data included in this book, and, most especially, thanks to my two Hiaki consultants, María Florez-Leyva and Santos Leyva. Without their knowledge of their languages, the research reported in this book would be significantly poorer.

I thank my colleagues at the University of Sonora, especially Zarina Estrada Fernández, for their encouragement and support in publishing this manuscript as a monograph. Additional thanks to Jason Haugen, Elly van Gelderen and Kees Vaes for their help in the edition and publishing stages.

On a more personal level, I thank the following people (in no particular order): Andy Wedel, Adam Ussishkin, Deniz Tat, Jerid Francom, Mans Hulden, Shannon Bischoff, Polly O'Rourke, Alan Hogue, Jaime Parchment, and Lionel Mathieu.

Love to my friends and family, especially my parents, Rafael and Ana, my step-father Manolo, for his constant support, aunts Mercedes and Isabel, my siblings Jose and Mamen, my grandparents who would have liked to see this book published, cousins, in-laws, Jon, Jason, Tori, and my husband, Kip, who is and will always be, my main source of encouragement, support, and inspiration. I love you all. Thanks for being part of my life.
