Acknowledgments

Many people have contributed to the work presented in this book. First and foremost, I would like to thank Susanne Winkler for her encouragement, her support, her teaching, and for many fruitful discussions on syntax, information structure, and ellipsis which have inspired and shaped the ideas presented in this monograph. A special thank you goes to Marga Reis for her detailed comments on the original manuscript, her advice and for her teaching. I would also like to thank Peter W. Culicover, Sam Featherston and Wolfgang Sternefeld for discussions, comments, and help. I have greatly benefited from comments and discussion with Kyle Johnson, Jason Merchant, Valéria Molnár, Ingo Reich, and with my colleagues in Tübingen and the SFB 833-The Construction of Meaning: Oliver Bott, Jutta M. Hartmann, Vera Hohaus, Robin Hörnig, Marion Knecht and Janina Radó.

Special gratitude goes to Kirsten Brock and Alex Huber for their help with editing.

I would also like to thank the series editors Werner Abraham and Elly van Gelderen for accepting this book for publication in their series. Many thanks go to Susan Hendriks and Kees Vaes at Benjamins.

This research was funded by the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft (DFG, German Research Foundation) and the Collaborative Research Center 833-Construction of Meaning at the University of Tübingen.

Ich widme dieses Buch meiner Familie, besonders meiner Mutter.
