This book came about due to the hard work of many people. Elly van Gelderen, Werner Abraham and Kees Vaes from John Benjamins have been extremely supportive and patient in bringing this text to print and offered us invaluable advice and comments. Steve Jensen was very helpful with the references to this volume. Sherrylyn Branchaw compiled the index. The editors would particularly like to thank the following people who graciously agreed to review the papers from this volume: David Adger, Mark Baker, Luis Barragan, Susanna Bejar, Robert Chametzky, Peter Cole, Chris Collins, Sandy Chung, Henry Davis, Ferdinand de Haan, Mark Donohue, Eithne Guilfoyle, Paul Hagstrom, Heidi Harley, Randy Hendrick, Arthur Holmer, Eloise Jelinek, Alana Johns, Simin Karimi, Hilda Koopman, Terry Langendoen, Felicia Lee, Julie Legate, Monica Macaulay, Diane Massam, Jim McCloskey, Yuko Otsuka, Andrea Rackowski, Elizabeth Ritter, and Andrea Zukowski.

The workshop that these papers were presented at was funded by the National Science Foundation,¹ the Department of Linguistics, and the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences at the University of Arizona. Jianyuan Wang was a fantastic student coordinator without whom we never could have brought the workshop to fruition. Other students at the University of Arizona graciously donated their time working the registration table, helping speakers, and hosting student visitors. These included: William Alexander, Luis Barragan, Lynnika Butler, Lika Chtareva, Erin Good, Charles Lin, Peter Norquest, Naomi Ogasawara, Kazutoshi Ohno, Meg O'Donnell, Emily Kidder, Dan Siddiqi, Azita Taleghani, Alina Twist, and Ben Tucker. The staff at the University of Arizona were invaluable in helping to arrange the conference, especially Yolanda Becerra, Rosemary Emery, and Gwen Weber. A number of our faculty colleagues also assisted in the organization and implementation of the conference: Andy Barss, Ferdinand de Haan, Mike Hammond, Eloise Jelinek, Simin Karimi, Terry Langendoen, Janet Nicol, and Elizabeth Winkler.

We hope we haven't missed anyone, but if we have, you know who you are and you are greatly appreciated too.
