

Acknowledgements

 <https://doi.org/10.1075/lal.33.ack>

Page xi of

Intertextuality in Practice

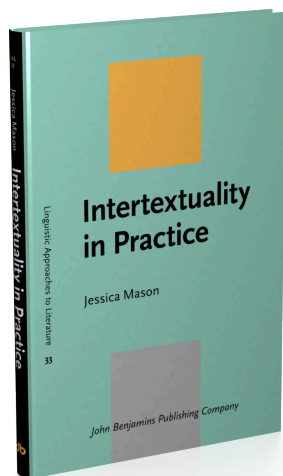

Jessica Mason

[Linguistic Approaches to Literature, 33] 2019. xi, 204 pp.

© John Benjamins Publishing Company

This electronic file may not be altered in any way. For any reuse of this material written permission should be obtained from the publishers or through the Copyright Clearance Center (for USA: www.copyright.com).

For further information, please contact rights@benjamins.nl or consult our website at benjamins.com/rights

Acknowledgements

First I would like to express my deepest gratitude and extend my thanks to the Economic and Social Research Council for funding much of this research, and to Joanna Gavins and Sonia Zyngier for being such insightful, constructive, supportive (and patient) editors: this is a much better book for your input and feedback.

I am privileged to have so many colleagues to acknowledge for their support over the ten years I have been working on this research. Many thanks to Peter Stockwell, Ron Carter, Mary Bailey, Charles Crook, Shaaron Ainsworth, and Sue Hemming for your mentorship and guidance. I'm greatly indebted to my colleagues in Sheffield, truly the city for stylistics, where I have been lucky enough to work at both the University of Sheffield and now Sheffield Hallam University in the course of writing this book: Alison Gibbons, Sara Whiteley, Joe Bray, Jo Gavins, Jane Hodson, Richard Steadman-Jones, David Peplow, Sam Browse, Alice Bell and Hugh Escott. For all of your cheerleading, advice, support, I am so grateful to all of you. Further afield, thanks and appreciation must go to Chloe Harrison and Marcello Giovanelli, for unwavering encouragement, willingness to read drafts, hear ideas, share ideas and being incredible friends. Thanks to Lexi Earl and Hannah Grosvenor without whom I doubt I would have ever completed my PhD.

Thanks must also of course go to my family. To my mother, Diane Mason, thank you for your love, pride and faith. Thank you too for learning the name of this book to tell people about it, and for your enthusiastic interest in my work (both real and lovingly feigned). Kym, Graham and Lewis, thanks for always being there, with love and support when it was difficult, and with smiles and celebrations to share my successes.

This book would not have been possible without Philip Godfrey, my amazing husband. Thanks for your relentless and emphatic belief in me and this research, as well as for your love, support, and for always being on my team.

Finally, to my father, Adrian Telford, to whom this book is dedicated. For reading all my school English essays, for analysing Bob Dylan lyrics with me, and for making me believe I could do and be anything I wanted. I love you. I miss you. I owe you. Thank you. All of you.