

Acknowledgements

 <https://doi.org/10.1075/llt.42.002ack>

Pages xiii–xiv of

Pronunciation Fundamentals: Evidence-based perspectives for L2 teaching and research

Tracey M. Derwing and Murray J. Munro

[Language Learning & Language Teaching, 42] 2015. xiii, 208 pp.

© John Benjamins Publishing Company

This electronic file may not be altered in any way. For any reuse of this material written permission should be obtained from the publishers or through the Copyright Clearance Center (for USA: www.copyright.com).

For further information, please contact rights@benjamins.nl or consult our website at benjamins.com/rights

Acknowledgements

Our deepest gratitude goes out to the students we met in our first years of teaching. We gained far more from them than they did from us. As we write this, we can still picture many of those individuals in our minds; several had a profound impact on us. These were bright, well-educated people who had overcome unthinkable adversities, only to be foiled by English pronunciation. There have been many students since then, and many participants in research studies, whose comments and diligent participation have been a tremendous inspiration.

We owe an immense debt to our co-teachers from that era, including Patti Dunne, Ron Smyth, Judy Cameron, Jeff Bullard, and Leslie Crawford, who were so generous with their ideas and time. Since then, many former students and research assistants (who in some instances became colleagues) have made significant contributions to our work, including Marian Rossiter, Ron Thomson, Susan Morton, Wendy McFeely, Jennifer Foote, Cliff Burgess, Kama Jamieson, Jean Wang, Herman Li, Amy Holtby, Natasha Penner, Gloria Mellesmoen, Enric Llorca, Sarvenaz Hatami, and Debra Elliot. Our co-investigators, Grace Wiebe, Mike Carbonaro, John Levis, Kazuya Saito, Erin Waugh, and others, have influenced our thinking for the better. We also thank two students who made helpful comments on earlier versions of this book, Lynn Sawyer and Patricia Watson. Thanks also to Laurie Scheffer, who worked on the author index.

Jennifer Foote and Sarvenaz Hatami deserve special mention for their work on the Glossary, the References, the general formatting of the book, and their overall meticulous assistance, to say nothing of their good humour assisting with these picky, boring tasks.

We also acknowledge the invaluable role our teachers and mentors played in our research careers: Jim Flege, Terry Nearey, Baha Abu-Laban, and Kathi Bailey. We have drawn tremendously on the input of our colleagues, both within the area of L2 pronunciation and in applied linguistics and phonetics generally, as well as our co-workers in our respective departments.

We thank Robert DeKeyser for encouraging us to write this volume. We are extremely grateful to Beth Zielinski, Bruce Derwing, Ron Smyth, Yue Wang, Ron Thomson, and Alan Borden for reading and commenting on individual chapters. Any remaining errors are clearly our own.

We also thank our friends, who patiently listen to what must seem like extremely esoteric stories filled with excruciating minutiae about our research. Special mention also goes to Chloe and Stewie Derwing, and Teddy and Owen Munro. Finally, and most importantly, we thank our spouses, Alan Borden and Bruce Derwing, who have been supportive in every way.

