

Foreword & acknowledgements

 <https://doi.org/10.1075/sihols.125.foreword>

Page vii of

Grammatica, Gramadach and Gramadeg: Vernacular grammar and grammarians in medieval Ireland and Wales

Edited by Deborah Hayden and Paul Russell

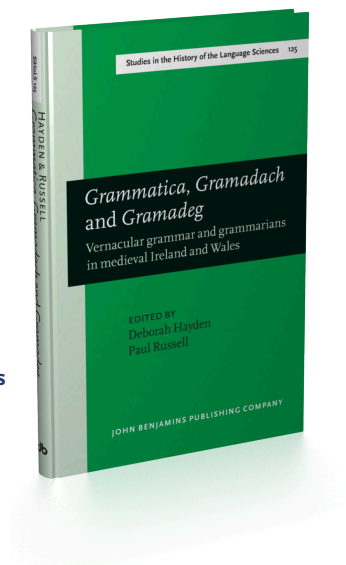

[Studies in the History of the Language Sciences, 125]

2016. xvi, 226 pp.

© John Benjamins Publishing Company

This electronic file may not be altered in any way. For any reuse of this material written permission should be obtained from the publishers or through the Copyright Clearance Center (for USA: www.copyright.com).

For further information, please contact rights@benjamins.nl or consult our website at benjamins.com/rights

Foreword & acknowledgements

The editors are pleased to acknowledge the financial support of the Modern Humanities Research Association, the Society for the Study of Medieval Languages and Literature, the Celtic Research Trust, and the Sir John Rhŷs Memorial Fund at the University of Oxford in funding the workshop on “Grammatica and the Celtic Vernaculars in the Medieval World” that took place at Christ Church, Oxford in April 2013, and which gave rise to the papers in this collection. The John Fell Fund at Oxford also offered valuable underwriting support that allowed this project to go ahead, and we are grateful to Christ Church, Oxford for providing excellent facilities and a beautiful setting for the two days of the workshop. We owe particular thanks to the members of the Department of Celtic at Oxford, especially Alderik Blom, Thomas Charles-Edwards and Mark Williams, for chairing sessions and for giving their enthusiastic support to the event. The National Library of Ireland, the National Library of Scotland, the Royal Irish Academy, Trinity College Dublin, and the St Gall Stiftsbibliothek kindly granted permission for us to reproduce various manuscript images. As General Editor of the “Studies in the History of the Language Sciences” Series, E. F. K. Koerner has likewise offered considerable assistance, advice and encouragement in bringing the proceedings of the workshop into printed form. We are also very grateful to the anonymous referees for their helpful comments and suggestions. Finally, this volume would not have come into being without the hard work and dedication of all the workshop participants, whose expertise, professionalism and stimulating ideas made both the symposium itself and the subsequent production of this volume a very pleasant experience indeed.