All research studies appearing in this volume were presented at the seminar entitled The Anglicization of European Lexis, part of the 10th International Conference of the European Society for the Study of English (ESSE), which was held at the Università degli Studi di Torino, Italy, in August 2010.

The scientific success of the conference and the publication of this volume would not have been possible without the precious and painstaking commitment of the conference organizer, Professor Giuseppina Cortese (Università degli Studi di Torino), then president of the Associazione Italiana di Anglistica (AIA), the Italian branch of ESSE. Further thanks are due to the president of ESSE, Professor Fernando Galván (Universidad de Alcalá).

After a careful selection process, authors were invited to revisit and expand aspects of their work presented at the seminar. The editors are very grateful to the following scholars who kindly accepted to act as reviewers of the research studies included in this volume: Guy Aston (Università di Bologna), Marco Bais (Pontificio Istituto Orientale di Roma), Julia Bamford (Università degli Studi di Napoli “L’Orientale”), Ljiljana Banjanin (Università degli Studi di Torino), Paul Bayley (Università di Bologna), Nicholas Brownlees (Università degli Studi di Firenze), Ulrich Busse (Martin Luther Universität Halle-Wittenberg), Elisa Corino (Università degli Studi di Torino), Marcella Costa (Università degli Studi di Torino), John Dunn (University of Glasgow), Roswitha Fischer (Universität Regensburg), John Humbley (Université Paris Diderot), Antonio Lillo Buades (Universidad de Alicante), Hanna Pułaczewska (Universität Regensburg), Mario Squartini (Università degli Studi di Torino). The final quality of the works benefited greatly from their helpful comments. We would also like to express our gratitude to Christopher Owen and Guy Watts (Università degli Studi di Torino) for suggesting stylistic improvements on the introductory chapter.

A note of thanks goes to the Camera di Commercio, Industria, Artigianato e Agricoltura di Torino, which supported the publication of this volume.
