

Contents

Foreword by George Wilson, ix

Introduction, xxi

- 1 Forget the Medium! 1
- 2 Film, Attention, and Communication:
A Naturalistic Account, 10
- 3 Film, Emotion, and Genre, 59
- 4 Ethnicity, Race, and Monstrosity:
The Rhetorics of Horror and Humor, 88
- 5 Is the Medium a (Moral) Message? 108
- 6 Film Form: An Argument for a Functional Theory of Style in the Individual Film, 127
- 7 Introducing Film Evaluation, 147
- 8 Nonfiction Film and Postmodernist Skepticism, 165

- 9 Fiction, Nonfiction, and the Film of Presumptive Assertion:
Conceptual Analyses, 193
- 10 Photographic Traces and Documentary Films: Comments
for Gregory Currie, 225
- 11 Toward a Definition of Moving-Picture Dance, 234
- 12 The Essence of Cinema? 255
- 13 TV and Film: A Philosophical Perspective, 265
- 14 Kracauer's Theory of Film, 281
- 15 Cinematic Nation Building: Eisenstein's The Old and the New, 303
- 16 The Professional Western: South of the Border, 323
- 17 Moving and Moving: From Minimalism to Lives of Performers, 345
- 18 Prospects for Film Theory: A Personal Assessment, 357
Credits, 401
Index, 403