

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This volume arises out of a 2012 conference “Charles Taylor at 80”; most of the papers here were presented in draft form there. The conference was the culmination of a four-year grant from the Fonds de recherche du Québec, Société et Culture (FRQSC) to Montreal’s Groupe de Recherche Interuniversitaire en Philosophie Politique (GRIPP). We thank our colleagues in GRIPP for their contributions and participation, and the FRQSC for financial support for the conference and for GRIPP’s ongoing programs. The conference and subsequent work toward publication was also supported by grants from the Templeton Foundation to the Research Group on Constitutional Studies at McGill, and from Quebec’s Secrétariat aux affaires intergouvernementales canadiennes, and by additional contributions from l’Association des études canadiennes; the Centre de recherche en éthique de l’Université de Montréal and the Vice-rectorat à la recherche, à la création et à l’innovation, l’Université de Montréal; the Centre for Global Challenges at York University; McGill’s Faculty of Arts, Department of Political Science, and Research Group on Constitutional Studies; the Canadian Federation for the Humanities and Social Sciences; le Groupe de recherche interuniversitaire sur la normativité; and le Groupe de recherche sur les sociétés plurinationales. Pierre-Yves Néron did the primary organizational work for the conference. Maud Gauthier-Chung, Martin Blanchard, and Louis-Philippe Caron Lanteigne contributed valuable additional organizational support.

We wish to thank Michel Bastarache, Guy Laforest, and Julius Grey who, along with Daniel M. Weinstock, contributed thoughts at the conference on professor Taylor’s important role as a public intellectual, in a public discussion ably chaired by the late Gretta Chambers.

We especially wish to thank professor Taylor for his memorable willingness to engage extemporaneously with the speakers, and to discuss issues ranging from the philosophy of mind and language to Canadian politics.

This book would not have come to fruition without the indispensable research assistance provided by Muhammad Velji, Éliot Litalien, and Alice Everly. Thanks for additional assistance to Abbie LeBlanc and Ewa Nizalowska.
