The Art of Identification began life as a series of workshops held at the University of Birmingham, the University of St. Andrews, and the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign that could not have taken place without the support of a research networking grant from the Arts and Humanities Research Council. The conversations begun at those workshops shaped the overall design of this volume and informed the majority of its chapters. The editors are therefore indebted to all workshop contributors, including Jess Woodhams, Lee Rainbow, Warren Hines, Dan Vyleta, Richard House, Deborah Jermyn, Jane Caplan, Kamilla Elliott, Spencer Schaffner, Jonathan Finn, Kate West, Charlotte Bilby, Annie Ring, Dawn Stobbart, Simon Cole, Stephen Cartwright, Kenworthy Bilz, Fabienne Collignon, Ian Burney, Malthe Boye Bjerregard, June Jones, and Jakob Stougaard-Nielsen. Meeting the artist Eric Fong (www.ericfong.com) in the final workshop was one of the wonderful discoveries of the series, and we gratefully acknowledge his contribution to the volume of the images found on the front cover and on the introductory pages to parts 1, 2, and 3. In pursuing publication, we were fortunate to have the support of Lucinda Cole and Bob Markley, series editors at Penn State University Press, who championed the project. At the press, our thanks go to Kendra Boileau, Alex Vose, and our anonymous readers, whose perceptive suggestions helped to strengthen the final manuscript in numerous ways.
