

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	3
Epistolary Research in Chinese Studies and Beyond	5
Textual Sources of Early Medieval Chinese Letter Writing	7
The Organization of This Book	10
Remarks on Translation	12
PART ONE
Materials and Concepts of Letter Writing
1. Materiality and Terminology	17
The Spread of Paper	17
Calligraphy and Letter Writing	23
Writers and Transporters of Letters	26
Terminology	34
The Genre of Personal Letters	37
2. Letters and Literary Thought	44
Cao Pi's "Disquisitions on Literature" on Letters as a Genre	45
The Absence of Letters in Lu Ji's "Rhapsody on Literature"	48
Liu Xie's The Literary Mind and the Carving of Dragons on Letters	49
Letters in Xiao Tong's Selections of Refined Literature	63
Letters about Literary Thought	64

PART TWO

Epistolary Conventions and Literary Individuality

3. Structures and Phrases	75
Letter Opening	76
Letter Body	93
Letter Closing	101
Terms of Address and Self-Designation	110
4. Topoi	117
Lamenting Separation	119
Letters as Substitutes for Face-to-Face Conversation	127
The Limits of Writing and Language	134
5. Normativity and Authenticity	139
Letter-Writing Guides	139
Expressing Individuality within the Bounds of Convention	145
Conclusion	151
Notes	155
Bibliography	197
Glossary-Index	219