

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book is a product of community collaboration and support that came in different forms and at different stages of this work and my life. Thank you to all the interviewees and their families who graciously shared their memories and personal collections with me. Your voices bring this narrative to life and enrich the book. Thank you especially to Juan L. Soria's family for their enthusiastic support.

A special thank-you to my compañera, Tara J. Yosso, a gifted scholar and amazing mother to our children, Nayeli and Enrique. This book has been a family affair, sometimes with the kids joining us at the archives. They have heard us analyze this project endlessly, and they let us know our conversations are annoying. Still, I am deeply grateful for your willingness to talk through the details, and I know the book is all the better because of your critical insights and support. Thank you to all of my familia, especially to my papá, who offered valuable insights about this history, and to my mamá, rest in peace, who alongside my dad always emphasized the importance of education.

My sincere appreciation to George Lipsitz, who saw this project develop and provided insightful feedback from the start. I continue to benefit greatly from your generous mentorship and admire your commitment to social justice. Thank you to my doctoral advisor and friend Juan Gómez-Quíñones, who has supported me in all my research and teaching projects. You are a pioneer scholar-activist and I am humbled by the opportunity to work with and learn from you.

I am indebted to those who blazed scholarly trails with research on Chicana/o history and Communities of Color, including (but not limited to) George I. Sánchez, Ernesto Galarza, Thomas P. Carter, Albert Camarillo, Charles M. Wollenberg, Rodolfo F. Acuña, Guadalupe San Miguel Jr., Gilbert G. Gonzalez, Rubén Donato, Antonia I. Castañeda, Vicki L. Ruiz,

Richard R. Valencia, Martha Menchaca, Devra Weber, Tomás Almaguer, George J. Sánchez, Mario T. García, and William H. Watkins. A special thank-you to Rubén Donato, James D. Anderson, Christopher Span, and Joy Williamson-Lott for your scholarship, feedback, and for the invaluable advice in navigating academia. Thank you to Judge Harry Pregerson for providing access to the court archives, sharing your memories, and epitomizing why, as you said, “The best judges come from East LA.”

Thank you to Natalia Molina, whose work inspires me, and whose critical feedback at an early stage of the manuscript helped me envision my contributions. To José M. Alamillo, Frank P. Barajas, and Luis H. Moreno, who are recovering our community histories with scholarship on Ventura County and Oxnard. Thank you all for sharing contacts, sources, and providing feedback at different points. A special thank-you to Louie Valdivia for introducing me to your family, who graciously shared their insights along with many of the classroom photos for the book. To Mario Rios Perez and Dionne Dannels for providing feedback on Chapter 5, Victoria-María MacDonald for early feedback on Chapter 1, and Nancy Beadie for affirming my work with an invitation to serve on the History of Education Quarterly editorial board.

I am appreciative for the support shown to Tara and me from the many students at UCLA. To the students who participated in my research apprenticeship course, including Alma I. Flores, Tanya Gaxiola, Luliana Alonso, Johnny “The Hurricane” Ramirez, Ryan E. Santos, and Michaela J. López Mares-Tamayo, I appreciate the space we shared to give each other feedback on our work and to keep our individual projects moving forward. I am grateful for the research assistance and feedback provided by Ryan E. Santos. You always made time to help me out on short notice when up against deadlines. I appreciate working with you and look forward to seeing your contributions to the field.

Thank you also to my colleagues and friends for their support: Dolores Delgado Bernal, Octavio Villalpando, Rebeca Burciaga, Maria Ledesma, Gaye Theresa Johnson, Yoon Pak, Ana Elizabeth Rosas, Laura K. Muñoz, Carlos K. Blanton, Irene Vásquez, Corina Benavides López, José Aguilar Hernández, Linda Chaparro, Enrique Alemán Jr., Sonya Alemán, Verónica Castillo-Muñoz, Gloria Toriche, and Tomás A. Carrasco, who introduced me to the amazing Carrasco family. Thank you to my friends of many years, Alberto Cervantes, José Rangel, Angel Colmenero, Carlos Arenas, Jose Cervantes, and Adalberto Huerta; I appreciate the many laughs.

Thank you to everyone at the University of California Press, especially Niels Hooper, who saw the potential in this manuscript and moved it forward, Bradley Depew for patience and quick replies to my barrage of first-time author queries, Jeffrey Wyneken for applying skill and care with detailed copyediting and for his encouraging enthusiasm about the manuscript, Dore Brown for keeping the project on track, Jolene Torr for working to ensure the book reaches a broad audience, the anonymous reviewers, and the UC Press Faculty Review Board, whose suggestions made this manuscript stronger. Thanks also to Victoria Baker for assistance with the index, to Veronica N. Velez for assistance in adapting the 1948 school map, to Nancy Lee Sayre for editorial support, and to Martin Gonzalez for research assistance toward the end of this project.

Thank you to the UC President's Postdoctoral Fellowship Program, which supported my transition into a tenure-track position at UCLA. Thank you to the Ford Foundation Postdoctoral Fellowship, which allowed me the time, during a crucial year, to work in the archives and conduct interviews. I am also thankful for the UCLA Hellman Fellows Program for recognizing the promise of my scholarship with timely support for my travel to the multiple archives, transcription of interviews, and other research expenses. The UCLA Chicana/o Studies Research Center also provided funding to cover travel and graduate student research assistance.

Thank you to all my UCLA colleagues, especially Daniel G. Solórzano, a kind and giving mentor. It is an honor to learn from and work with you. To Tyrone Howard, Douglas Kellner, Concepción Valadez, John Rogers, Marjorie Orellana, Robert Chao-Romero, Vilma Ortiz, Thomas M. Philip, and Robert Teranishi, thank you for being supportive at critical times. At the University of Michigan, I also encountered a great group of colleagues and students. I am especially grateful for the support from Deborah Loewenberg Ball.

Thank you to the many archivists and librarians at the National Archives and Library of Congress in California and Washington, DC; your work and expertise are so vital. Charles N. Johnson at the Museum of Ventura County patiently helped me locate many of the early photographs of Oxnard. Thank you to Superintendent Cesar Morales for providing me access to the Oxnard Elementary School District archives, and to Sylvia Carabajal for your kind assistance. To all those who forged paths toward educational equality, and those who continue the struggle, gracias.
