

❧ CONTENTS ❧

Preface	ix
Abbreviations	xiii
INTRODUCTION: The Letters in Machiavelli Studies	3
CHAPTER ONE: Renaissance Epistolarity	18
The Social Worlds of Florentine Letter Writing	19
Petrarch and the Ancients	25
Humanists and Their Letter Collections	30
Letters and Literature	33
Manuals and Theory	42
CHAPTER TWO: Contexts Personal and Political	58
The Secretary and His Letters	58
Francesco Vettori	71
Friendship and Politics in the Republic's Crisis	82
CHAPTER THREE: "Formerly Secretary"	95
"Discorsi et concerti" in Exile	95
"A spirited maker of beginnings"	117
CHAPTER FOUR: Speaking like Romans	136
"Some of it we just imagine"	136
"Naturale affectione o passione"	152
The Swiss and "the sweetness of domination"	156
The Invention of Redemptive Virtù	167
CHAPTER FIVE: The Prince "Addressed" to Francesco Vettori	176
What Text Did Vettori See?	177
"Verità effettuale" and "Imaginazione"	185
Security and Power	197
Intelligibility, Power, Love	201
CHAPTER SIX: Geta and the "Antiqui Huomini"
(The Letter of 10 December 1513)	215
"Sed fatis trahimur"	215
Maestro Geta and His New "Scienza"	221
"Tucto mi transferisco in loro"	230

CHAPTER SEVEN: " A Ridiculous Metamorphosis "	241
"What kinds of writers could not be criticized?"	241
"As worthy of being recited to a prince as anything I have heard this year"	253
Desire in the Text	271
CHAPTER EIGHT: " After a Thousand Years "	277
"These princes are men like you and me"	277
"To me alone Troy remains"	287
"To enlist you again in the old game"	295
CHAPTER NINE: Poetry and Politics	313
Corydon in San Casciano	313
Metamorphosis in the Text	319
EPILOGUE: The Poets of the Discourses	335
Index	351