

Contents

|                                                                                              | PAGE |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Preface                                                                               | xiii |
| Preface to the Second Edition                                                         | xiv  |
| I. Pandora in the Medieval Tradition                                                         | 3    |
| II. The Origin of the “Box”: Erasmus of Rotterdam                                            | 14   |
| III. Pandora and Hope: Andrea Alciati                                                        | 27   |
| IV. Pandora and Ignorance: Rosso Fiorentino                                                  | 34   |
| V. Roma Prima Pandora; Eva Prima Pandora; Lutetia Nova Pandora                        | 55   |
| VI. Pandora, “Gift of All”: Elizabethans and Jacques Callot                                  | 68   |
| VII. Πιθοκις: Hesiod vs. Babrius et al.                                        | 79   |
| VIII. Romanticism, Classicist and Victorian                                                  | 85   |
| Epilogue: Pandora on the Stage: Calderón, Voltaire, Goethe, and Late-Antique Allegory | 117  |
| Addenda                                                                               | 137  |
| Addenda to the Second Edition                                                         | 142  |
| Index                                                                                 | 169  |

