More Praise for PRIVILEGE

"[Khan's] many perspectives—as a minority student in a rich WASP school, as a teacher interacting with his students, and as a researcher observing his subjects—gave him unique access to understanding the American elite. . . . Khan's objectivity turns to pessimism as he describes the result of greater diversity, which he finds 'does not mean mobility and it certainly does not mean equality."

-BARBARA FISHER, Boston Globe

"[Khan] steps down from his pedestal and lets himself get closer to these future masters of the universe."

—ROBIN D. SCHATZ, Bloomberg News

"Essential reading for understanding today's elite. Not since Christopher Lasch's Revolt of the Elites has the meritocracy been so effectively skewered."

—AUSTIN BRAMWELL, American Conservative

"If you want a peek inside an elite New England prep school, here it is. . . . But while nosiness about St. Paul's is a perfectly good reason to read the book, Khan's purpose is higher. . . . Full of valuable insights."

—MIKE PRIDE, Concord Monitor

"Privilege is an exceptional cultural study of inequality that concentrates on elites. It is a brave piece of work, guaranteed to raise the hackles of more than a few private school trustees, administrators, faculty and parents."

—MICHAEL D. LANGAN, Buffalo News

"An incisive study of the formation of a new, meritocratic elite. . . . Consistently engaging."

—Choice

"Beautifully written and filled with important insights into processes of socialization among the elite."

-WENDY LEO MOORE, American Journal of Sociology

"An examination of how elites are made and how they relate to the rest of the world. . . . Highly recommended to anyone interested in stratification and education."

-FABIO ROJAS, OrgTheory.net

"Illustrates how the relative steepness of the U.S. postsecondary system contributes to enduring social inequalities."

—JANICE AURINI, Canadian Journal of Sociology

"There are few ethnographic accounts of life in exclusive American boarding schools and Khan's book is far and away the most sophisticated among them.... Khan's book is full of surprises."

-VICTORIA BONNELL, Contemporary Sociology

"This readable book provides a vivid, often elucidating, and not always pretty look at life at St. Paul's."

-RICHARD L. ZWEIGENHAFT, Social Forces

"Excellent, engaging, well written, and carefully researched [study] of the ways culture works in and through schools."

-LISA M. STULBERG, Contexts

"Privilege is superb. Khan skillfully narrates from the perspective of both teacher and researcher, and the personal portraits are very well-rounded. This important book is a masterly look at a disturbing current in the formation of elite American society."

—RICHARD SENNETT, author of The Corrosion of Character

"This is a terrific book. Khan's strong authorial voice and wonderful personality shine through and it is a pleasure to follow his life and travails at St. Paul's."

-MICHÈLE LAMONT, Harvard University

Privilege

PRINCETON STUDIES IN CULTURAL SOCIOLOGY

Paul J. DiMaggio, Michèle Lamont, Robert J. Wuthnow, and Viviana A. Zelizer, Series Editors

A list of titles in this series appears at the back of the book

Privilege

THE MAKING OF AN ADOLESCENT ELITE AT ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL

Shamus Rahman Khan

With a new preface by the author

Princeton University Press Princeton & Oxford

Copyright © 2011 by Shamus Rahman Khan New preface copyright © 2021 by Shamus Rahman Khan

Requests for permission to reproduce material from this work should be sent to Permissions, Princeton University Press

Published by Princeton University Press, 41 William Street, Princeton, New Jersey 08540

In the United Kingdom: Princeton University Press, 6 Oxford Street, Woodstock, Oxfordshire OX20 1TR

press.princeton.edu

Cover photograph by Jonathan Becker

All Rights Reserved

First published in 2011

New paperback edition, with a new preface by the author, 2021

New paperback ISBN 978-0-691-22920-1

Cloth ISBN 978-0-691-14528-0

LCCN 2021934434

British Library Cataloging-in-Publication Data is available

This book has been composed in Adobe Garamond

Printed in the United States of America

The barrier has changed shape rather than place

—Alexis de Tocqueville