

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

MANY individuals have given the Editors the benefit of their aid in the preparation of this volume, and we offer them our thanks. At Princeton, we are grateful to Angela Creager, Judith Hanson, Steve Knowlton, and Millie Ndiritu in the Department of History, and their former colleague, Debora Macy; in the libraries, Anne E. Jarvis, Colleen M. Burlingham, Elaine Russian, and Anuradha Vedantham; in the Office of the Dean of the Faculty, Associate Dean Karen B. Haskin; Tim Aultom, Steven Semenuk, and Angela Ward in the Office of the Vice President for Finance and Treasurer; Caroline McHugh Sitren and Kristen Hubbard in the Office of Research and Project Administration and former members of that office Maureen Thompson-Siegel, Mona L. Hall, Mellissa Williams, Eszter Rudy, and Bushra Rehman; and Professor William C. Jordan for assistance with language translations. Jason Bush, Paul Hayslett, and Allan Orsnes of IDM skillfully provide technical support. Our collaborative partners at Princeton University Press have our deepest admiration and appreciation, including Christie Henry, Eric Crahan, and Mark Bellis; we rely on the remarkable contributions of Carmina Alvarez-Gaffin, Meghan Kanabay, Dimitri Karetnikov, and Erin Suydam. We are grateful to Bob Bartleson of IPS and his colleagues, especially Carol Pierson, for carefully and consistently handling the composition of the volumes. At the University of Virginia Press, we are indebted to David Sewell and Patricia Searl. Research assistant Abbie Minard performed a variety of essential tasks. We owe much to the skill of Gretchen Oberfranc in reading each volume. We are indebted to Lucia C. Stanton for sharing her wisdom and knowledge and to Alfred L. Bush for assistance, particularly with our illustrations. For special assistance on this volume, we appreciate the help of Sabina Beauchard, formerly of the Massachusetts Historical Society; Mark Greek at the District of Columbia Public Library; Russell Hopley for help with documents in Arabic; Dennis Northcott at the Missouri Historical Society Library and Research Center; and, for illustrations, Michela Bonardi at The British Museum, Dawn Bonner at George Washington's Mount Vernon, Jeffrey Cohen, Bryn Mawr College, Peter Coolidge, Eleanor Gillers at the New-York Historical Society, Christopher Kintzel at the Maryland State Archives, Meredith McDonough at the Alabama State Archives, Lara Szypszak at the Library of Congress, Gregory R. Weidman at Hampton NHS, Penny White at the Albert and Shirley Small Special Collections Library at the University of Virginia as well

Harris of the Papers of William Thornton; the staffs of the American Philosophical Society, the Huntington Library, the Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, the New-York Historical Society, and the American Antiquarian Society; and our friends and fellow editors at the Thomas Jefferson Retirement Series at Monticello, the Adams Papers at the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Papers of James Madison and the Papers of George Washington at the University of Virginia, the Papers of Benjamin Franklin at Yale University, and the James Monroe Papers at the University of Mary Washington.

We mourn the passing of our longtime production editor at the Press, Lauren Lepow. Lauren's meticulous attention to detail in wrangling the manuscripts and files of the volumes from submission through page proofs to bound book and then to digital publication was vital to their timely and attractive appearance. Lauren's professionalism coupled with her quiet voice and unshakable good humor made working with her an unfailing pleasure. She was a nonpareil. Along with all her colleagues and friends, we will miss her.
