

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This volume would not have been possible without the help and generosity of a number of people and organisations. We are particularly grateful to the members of the project's Advisory Board who provided advice in the early stages of the book's planning. Without the sponsorship of the National Library of Scotland and Edinburgh University Library, and the support of the National Galleries of Scotland, many of the illustrations in this volume would not have been possible. The Fisher Rare Book Library at the University of Toronto also provided crucial assistance during the editorial process. We are indebted to the University of Edinburgh, the Carnegie Trust, Trent University and the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada for funding at various stages of the project.

Individuals who have given their support in a variety of ways include John Barnard, Bill Bauermeister, Iain Beavan, Iain Gordon Brown, Kathryn Chittick, Tristram Clarke, Shona Corner, David Finkelstein, Chris Fleet, Alan Grant, Anette Hagan, John Herdman, Brian Hillyard, Graham Hogg, Heather Holmes, Trevor Howard-Hill, James N. Green, Nye Hughes, Richard Hunter, Alasdair MacDonald, Barry Mackay, Alison McQueen, Alastair Mann, Joe Marshall, John and Virginia Murray, Sheila Noble, Richard Ovenden, Alan Rankin, David Purdie, John Scally, Patrick Scott, Murray Simpson, Geoffrey Waterston, William Zachs. We thank the staff of Edinburgh University Press for their support, in particular Jackie Jones, James Dale and Ian Davidson. Also copy editor Nicola Wood and indexer Philip Hillyer.

Stephen W. Brown thanks Philip, Edith and Madeleine for their patience during the many summers in Edinburgh and winters in Peterborough when they shared their father's time with this volume; and especially his wife, Kate, whose intellectual companionship, love of books and greater intimacy with the advances of a digital world have been and continue to be essential to his success and happiness.

Warren McDougall thanks his wife, Joanne, for her support, and the family, John and Christine and grandsons Chris and Mark, for their interest.

This volume is the work of forty-two authors. The editors thank them for the light they have shed on the history of the book in Scotland.
