Acknowledgements

The editors wish to thank all who have contributed material for the twenty-one chapters and four appendices which make up this history, most but not all of whom are named in the appropriate places. Their support has mirrored the consistently collegiate ethos which has been the hallmark of our community over the years. Without their hard work and willingness to respond quickly to requests for help, the final story would have been far less complete and much less interesting. Roger Jones commented valuably on a late edition of the manuscript, and George Freeman was particularly helpful in the collation of several of the London histories.

We are particularly grateful to David Weller who made funding available from the James Mackenzie Fund to enable this work to be published, and to Jackie Jones and her staff at Edinburgh University Press for their enthusiastic support at all stages of its production.

Finally we thank the Editor of the British Journal of General Practice for permission to reproduce Appendix 3.
