

Notes for the Reader

The transliteration of Arabic follows the conventions employed in the International Journal of Middle East Studies. Dotted consonants and long vowels are not, however, included for personal names and toponyms. English spellings are employed for well-known towns and cities (Cairo, Jerusalem, Mecca, Medina and so on). For personal names in Greek I have adopted the forms that most commonly appear in academic publications.