

CONTENTS

Introduction: Towards a Minoritarian Criticism – The Questions We Ask S. E. Gontarski	1
Part 1: Art and Aesthetics
1 ‘Deux Besoins’: Samuel Beckett and the Aesthetic Dilemma C. J. Ackerley	17
2 ‘Siege Laid Again’: Arikha’s Gaze, Beckett’s Painted Stage David Lloyd	25
3 Convulsive Aesthetics: Beckett, Chaplin and Charcot Ulrika Maude	44
4 Pain Degree Zero Sam Slote	54
Part 2: Fictions
5 Sexual Indifference in the Three Novels Paul Stewart	67
6 A Neuropolitics of Subjectivity in Samuel Beckett’s Three Novels Andrew V. McFeaters	78
7 Evening, Night and Other Shades of Dark: Beckett’s Short Prose Tomasz Wiśniewski	89
Part 3: A European Context
8 French Beckett and French Literary Politics 1945–52 Andrew Gibson	103
9 Beckett/Sade: texts for nothing John Pilling	117
10 Beckett’s Masson: From Abstraction to Non-Relation Jean-Michel Rabaté	131
11 Beckett, Duthuit and Ongoing Dialogue Anthony Uhlmann	146
12 Gloria SMH and Beckett’s Linguistic Encryptions Laura Salisbury	153
13 ‘I am writing a manifesto because I have nothing to say’ (Soupault): Samuel Beckett and the Interwar Avant-Garde Peter Fifield	170

14	Beckett and Contemporary French Literature Sjef Houppermans	185
Part 4: An Irish Context
15	The 'Irish' Translation of Samuel Beckett's En Attendant Godot Anthony Roche	199
16	Odds, Ends, Beginnings: Samuel Beckett and Theatre Cultures in 1930s Dublin Emilie Morin	209
17	'Bid Us Sigh On from Day to Day': Beckett and the Irish Big House Seán Kennedy	222
Part 5: Film, Radio and Television
18	A Womb with a View: Film as Regression Fantasy Graley Herren	237
19	'The Sound Is Enough': Beckett's Radio Plays Everett C. Frost	251
Part 6: Language/Writing
20	'Was That a Point?': Beckett's Punctuation Steven Connor	269
21	Beckett's Unpublished Canon Mark Nixon	282
22	Textual Scars: Beckett, Genetic Criticism and Textual Scholarship Dirk Van Hulle	306
23	Beckett's Ill Seen Ill Said : Reading the Subject, Subject to Reading Adam Piette	320
Part 7: Philosophies
24	Beckett and Philosophy Matthew Feldman	333
25	'Ruse a by': Watt, the Rupture of the Everyday and Transcendental Empiricism S. E. Gontarski	345
26	Beckett, Modernism and Christianity Erik Tønning	353
Part 8: Theatre and Performance
27	'Oh Lovely Art': Beckett and Music David Tucker	373
28	Victimised Actors and Despotical Directors: Clichés of Theatre at Stake in Beckett's Catastrophe Laura Peja	386
29	Staging the Modernist Monologue as Capable Negativity: Beckett's 'A Piece of Monologue' Between and Beyond Eliot and Joyce John Paul Riquelme	397
30	Designing Beckett: Jocelyn Herbert's Contribution to Samuel Beckett's Theatrical Aesthetics Anna McMullan	409

31	Dianoetic Laughter in Tragedy: Accepting Finitude – Beckett’s Endgame Annamaria Cascetta	423
32	Performing the Formless Geneviève Chevallier	433
Part 9: Global Beckett
33	‘Facing Other Windows’: Beckett in Brazil Fábio de Souza Andrade	445
34	Beckett in Belgrade Predrag Todorovic	453
35	‘Struggling With a Dead Language’: Language of Others in All That Fall and the Japanese Avant-Garde Theatre in the 1960s Mariko Hori Tanaka	465
	Contributors	477
	Index	485

