

Contents

List of Illustrations • vii
Acknowledgments • xvii
Preface • xix

Part One Introduction

- 1 Professionalism as Critical Concept and Historical Process for Women and Art in Canada • 3
KRISTINA HUNEAULT

Part Two Professionalizing Art

- 2 “What Would He Have Us Do?”: Gender and the “Profession” of Artist in New Brunswick in the 1930s and 1940s • 55
KIRK NIERGARTH
- 3 The Rewards of Professionalization: Alice Lusk Webster and the New Brunswick Museum, 1933–53 • 83
LIANNE MCTAVISH
- 4 “A Story of Struggle and Splendid Courage”: Anne Savage’s CBC
Broadcasts of The Development of Art in Canada • 106
ALENA BUIS

Part Three Careers for Women

- 5 Hannah Maynard: Crafting Professional Identity • 135
JENNIFER SALAHUB
- 6 From Amateur to Professional: The Advertising Photography of Margaret Watkins, 1924–28 • 168
MARY O’CONNOR

- 7 “I Weep for Us Women”: Modernism, Feminism, and Suburbia in the Canadian Home Journal’s Home ’53 Design Competition • 194
CYNTHIA IMOGEN HAMMOND

- 8 Kathleen Daly’s Images of Inuit People: Professional Art and the Practice of Ethnography • 225
LOREN LERNER

- 9 The Girls and the Grid: Montreal Women Abstract Painters
in the 1950s and Early 1960s • 259
SANDRA PAIKOWSKY

Part Four The Limits of Professionalism

- 10 “I Want to Call Their Names in Resistance”: Writing Aboriginal Women into Canadian Art History, 1880–1970 • 285
SHERRY FARRELL RACETTE

- 11 From “Naturalized Invention” to the Invention of a Tradition:
The Victorian Reception of Onkwehonwe Beadwork • 327
RUTH B. PHILLIPS

- 12 Professional/Volunteer: Women at the Edmonton Art Gallery, 1923–70 • 357
ANNE WHITELAW

- 13 “Marjorie’s Web”: Canada’s First Woman Architect and
Her Clients • 380
ANNMARIE ADAMS

Contributors • 401

Bibliography • 405

Index • 433