

Contents

Preface	vii
Abbreviations	xi
Introduction: Traditional Chinese Fiction Commentary in Context	1
Part I: A Brief History of Chinese Fiction Commentary
1. Mr. Pingdian: Jin Shengtān and the Shuihu zhuan	25
2. Dealing with Jin Shengtān and the Rest of the “Four Masterworks”	51
3. Decline and Revival	85
Part II: Making Room for Fiction
4. Creating Implied Authors and Readers	105
5. Liberating Fiction from History	131
6. Liberating Fiction from “Reality”	166
Part III: From What to Who: The Turn Away from Plot
7. From Plot-Centered to Character-Centered Narratives	191
8. Relational Characterization and Ambiguous Characters	209
Part IV: How to Write the Chinese Novel
9. Fiction Criticism and How the Story Is Told	229
10. Articulating the Parts	243

Part V: Four Solutions to the Challenge of Commentary

11. Auto-commentary: The Xiyou bu and the Shuibu houzhuan	269
12. Commentator-Narrators: Li Yu, Ding Yaokang, and Wen Kang	284
13. Latent Commentary: The Rulin waishi	312
14. Everything All at Once: The Honglou meng	329
 Works Cited	 351
Glossary-Index	383