

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

If anything tests your ideas, it is teaching, which affords you the sounding board of colleagues and students. In retirement you have no such sounding board, and it was for this reason that I floated the idea for Cruel Modernity to a group of colleagues and friends at New York University, among them Sybille Fischer, Ana Dopico, Mary Louise Pratt, and Gabriela Nouzeilles, to all of whom I owe a debt of thanks. I thank Patrick Deere for his technical help that was so necessary given my deplorable Luddite approach to machines. I thank Ruth Formanek for her generous comments on photography, Diamela Eltit and Catalina Parra for their valuable suggestions on Chile, and Marta Lamas for supplying me with information on femicide in Mexico. The book owes much to the work of Ileana Rodríguez and María Saldaña and to the support of Ed Cohen, who helped preserve my sanity. Thanks also to Christi Stanforth, the production editor, and to April Leidig, the designer and typesetter.

I owe a special debt of gratitude to Cristina Camille Pérez Jiménez, who helped prepare the manuscript for publication, and to the Mellon Foundation for financial support toward the manuscript's completion.
