

CONTENTS

Preface, vii

Acknowledgments, xiii

Introduction: We Welcoming Others, or What's Wrong with the Global Point of View?, 1

I. Reading as a Vanishing Act

1. Edward W. Said and the Fate of Critical Culture, 29
2. Why Foucault No Longer Matters, 43
3. Lentricchia's Frankness and the Place of Literature, 62

II. Globalizing Literary Studies

4. Redesigning the Lessons of Literature, 95
5. The Return to Ethics and the Specter of Reading, 114
6. Class in a Global Light: The Two Professions, 136

III. Analyzing Global America

- 7. Transference and Abjection: An Analytic Parable, 163
- 8. Ghostwork: An Uncanny Prospect for New Americanists, 183
- 9. Specter of Theory: The Bad Conscience of American Criticism, 220

IV. Reading Worlds

- 10. Empire Baroque: Becoming Other in Henry James, 237
- 11. Planet Buyer and the Catmaster: A Critical Future for Transference, 301

Notes, 339

Bibliography, 357

Index, 365