

Acknowledgments

Every anthology represents the combined efforts of a dedicated group of contributors. To those who gave their time and energy to write essays for this book, I offer my grateful appreciation. It was a distinct pleasure to work with all of you. At Northwestern University, I have benefited from gracious colleagues and generous administrators on two campuses. At the Feinberg School of Medicine, my thanks go to Ray Curry (Office of Medical Education), Kathryn Montgomery, Tod Chambers, and Ellen LeVee (Program in Medical Humanities and Bioethics). In the School of Communication, I am grateful for the assistance of Mimi White (Department of Radio/TV/Film). I also enjoyed working with the impressive professionals at Duke University Press, particularly Ken Wissoker, Christine Dahlin, and Pam Morrison. As always, my parents, Eva and Eugene Friedman, my children, Marc and Rachel Friedman, and my step-daughter, Allison Kavey, provided sustained encouragement, laughter, and hope for the future. My wife, Rae-Ellen Kavey, read my work with a keen eye and patient sensitivity. To her I owe more than words can express.
