

CONTENTS

.....

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: A Genealogy of the Labor Novel 1

PART I

Realism Meets the Masses 21

1. "How Deep Might Be the Romance":
Representing Work and the Working Class in Elizabeth Gaskell's Mary Barton 29

2. A Modern Odyssey: Felix Holt's
Education for the Masses 63

PART II

Coming of Age in a World Economy 85

3. Seeing the Invisible:
The Bildungsroman and the Narration of a New Regime of Accumulation 89

PART III

Itineraries of the Utopian 137

4. William Morris and a People's Art:
Reimagining the Pleasures of Labor 141

5. Utopia, Use, and the Everyday:
Oscar Wilde and a New Economy of Pleasure 181

Conclusion 205

Notes 215

Bibliography 251

Index 263