FORDHAM SERIES IN MEDIEVAL STUDIES

1. Richard F. Gyug, ed., Medieval Cultures in Contact.

The Fordham Series in Medieval Studies (FSiMS) was founded to promote monographic studies, editions, and collections of essays devoted to a wide variety of medieval topics. The Series' primary interest is in methodological diversity and innovation in fields evermore under represented in Anglophone academic presses. Its fields of inquiry include material, textual and manuscript culture, the linguistic and literary cultures of the medieval world, historical studies based particularly on new or newly interpreted documentation, and editions of works that contribute to the reevaluation of historical and literary documentation.
