

Acknowledgments

This biography on John Papa ʻĪi marks an important milestone in my journey as an ʻŌiwi motivated to gain a deeper understanding of my people's history, language, and culture, and to raise awareness about the same. Looking back, I can now clearly see the path that led me to this point. Along the way, I was guided, protected, assisted, and/or inspired by the ʻāina itself, our akua, my ʻaumākua, the ʻŌiwi whose efforts have paved the way for my own, my kūpuna, my ʻohana, my children, my friends, my former professors, and my students.

In particular, I would like to recognize the following people. From my ʻohana, aloha and mahalo to my great-grandmother Mary Ah-Lan Kaaikai Pang Sills, my grandmother Mary Haalou Sills Seabury Gregory, my mother Patricia Jacqueline Koonohiokala Seabury Brown Torres, my aunt Sandra Marie Kaaikai Seabury Peterson, my grandmother Nathleen Fagan Brown, my father Alton Ray Brown, and my children Lehua and Cristoforo Perrone. Others who have especially sustained me with their aloha and their friendship, encouraged me, helped me, shared knowledge, and/or offered feedback on my work include Chris Anderson, Cristina Bacchilega, Kauila Barber, John Charlot, Kim Compoc, Joy Enomoto, Jon Goldberg-Hiller, Mehanaokalā

Hind, ku'ualoha ho'omanawanui, Uluwehi Hopkins, Craig Howes, Pualani Kanaka'ole Kanahele, J. Kēhaulani Kauanui, Liam Kernell, Steve Y. Kimura, Steve Laudig, Kaiwipunikauikawēkiu Lipe, Kerry 'Ilima Long, Jeffrey Kapali Lyon, Mailelaulii Maii, Brandy Nālani McDougall, Madoka Nagado, M. Puakea Nogelmeier, Kalei Nu'uhiwa, Hiapokeikikāne Kitchie Perreira, Barbara Barbosa Puahala, Tia Reber, No'ukahau'oli Revilla, Aaron Salā, Shelly Scott, Danielle Seid, Noenoe Silva, Lyz Soto, Amy Stillman, Ronald Williams Jr., and Larcy Lynn Barbosa Zamanzani.

During the course of my research, the Mellon-Hawai'i Doctoral and Postdoctoral Fellowship Program awarded me a fellowship in 2012 that allowed me to focus on my writing. I am grateful to them for this assistance, and to the Kohala Center for creating the Mellon-Hawai'i Doctoral and Postdoctoral Fellowship Program, and the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, Kamehameha Schools, and the Kahiau Foundation for helping the Kohala Center to make this program possible. Also, I would like to express my gratitude to Michael Duckworth, Alison Kleczewski, and everyone else at the University of Hawai'i Press who were involved in the production of this book. To the three anonymous peer reviewers who offered valuable feedback and expressed their overwhelming support for my manuscript, thank you so very much.

Lastly, e ka mea heluhelu makamae, dear reader, thank you for helping to keep John Papa 'Ī'i alive in our collective memory by reading about his life.

To everyone I have acknowledged here, this book is dedicated to you.
