

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: Remaking Area Studies	ix
Jon Goss and Terence Wesley-Smith
Part One: Reshaping Area Studies in an Era of Globalization	1
1. Asia Pacific Studies in an Age of Global Modernity	5
Arif Dirlik
2. Remapping Area Knowledge: Beyond Global/Local	24
Neil Smith
3. Locating Asia Pacific: The Politics and Practice of Global Division	41
Martin W. Lewis
Part Two: Perspectives from Asia and the Pacific	67
4. The Evolution of “Area Studies” in Japan: The Impact of Global Context and Institutional Setting	71
Lonny E. Carlile
5. The Development of Asia Pacific Studies: A Case Study of Internationalization in Japanese Higher Education	92
Jeremy Eades
6. For or Before an Asia Pacific Studies Agenda? Specifying Pacific Studies	110
Teresia K. Teaiwa
7. Institutional Collaborations: People, Politics, Policy	125
Lily Kong
Part Three: Asia Pacific Learning Communities	141
8. Traveling Cultures: Tourism and the Virtual Classroom in Hawai‘i and Singapore	146
T. C. Chang, Jon Goss, and Christine R. Yano

9. Chinatown and the Virtual Classroom in Singapore and Hawai‘i Lisa Law and Jon Goss	164
10. Salaam Mānoa, Aloha Mindanao: Creating a Student- Centered, Real-Time, Virtual Classroom Conrado Balatbat, Hezekiah Concepcion, Gerard Finin, and Ricardo Trimillos	178
11. E-Learning and the Remaking of Pacific Studies: An Evolutionary Tale Peter Hempenstall, Robert Nicole, and Terence Wesley-Smith	196
Epilogue: Remaking Asia Pacific Studies Ricardo Trimillos	211
About the Contributors	225
Index	231