

contents

	Note to Readers	vii
	Preface	ix
	Introduction	i
one	The Global and the Local in the Origins of the Raku Technique	13
two	Anomie and Innovation in Kyoto: Ceramic Professionals, Amateurs, and Consumers	41
three	Inventing Early Modern Identity: The Birth of the Raku House	69
four	Institutionalization of the Iemoto Gaze: Tea, Raku, and the Iemoto System	89
five	Reproduction and Appropriation in the Nationwide Dispersal of the Raku Technique	111
six	Inventing Modern Identity: The Collapse of Warrior Patronage, the Rise of Individualism and Nationalism	133
	Epilogue: Authenticity and Connoisseurship	161
	Notes	167
	Bibliography	211
	Index	231
	Color plates follow page 82.

