

CONTENTS

Foreword: Public Libraries: A Very Short Personal History–vii

Foreword: Public Library Beginnings in Saskatchewan–xi

Acknowledgements–xv

From the Editors–xxi

PART I: BEGINNINGS, THE CHIEF LIBRARIANS AND THEIR TERMS

Chapter 1: Regina Citizens Petition for a Free Public Library–1

Chapter 2: J. R. C. Honeyman (1908–1936) and the New Library in Action–17

Chapter 3: Three Librarians (1937–47) and World War II–45

Chapter 4: Marjorie Dunlop (1948–72), the Postwar Era, and Moving into the Future–65

Chapter 5: Ron Yeo (1972–88): A Bookseller
Becomes Chief Librarian–85

Chapter 6: Ken Jensen (1988–98): Financial Restraint and Increased Scrutiny–105

Chapter 7: Sandy Cameron (1999–2005): Cutbacks and Closures–119

Chapter 8: Jeff Barber (2005–present): A New Direction–141

PART II: THE LIBRARY AND HOW IT WORKS

Chapter 9: Behind the Scenes–151

Chapter 10: Central Public Services, Part 1: Circulation,
Information Services, Interlibrary Loan, Film and Audio-
Visual Services, and the RPL Film Theatre–163

Chapter 11: Central Public Services, Part 2: The History of RPL's
Children's Services According to Dewey Decimal–191

Chapter 12: Central Public Services, Part 3:
The Prairie History Room–209

Chapter 13: Community Relations: Public Relations,
Writer-in-Residence, Adult Programming, Outreach,
Literacy Services, and Albert Library–223

Chapter 14: The Central Library Building–241

Chapter 15: Serving Neighbourhoods: Branch
Libraries and Booktrailers–253

Chapter 16: The Dunlop Art Gallery–291

PART III: TODAY, TOMORROW, AND THE FUTURE

Conclusion: The Regina Public Library in the World of Tomorrow–325

Afterword: The Future of the Regina Public Library–331

Appendix A: Board Members: 1908 to 2014–333

Appendix B: Writers-in-Residence–336

Appendix C: A Brief History of Libraries from Antiquity to the RPL–337

Notes–343

Bibliography–369

Contributors –373

Editors –377

Permissions Acknowledgements–378

Index–379