

Acknowledgements

Many people have supported and guided me throughout the process of writing this book. I would like to express my sincerest gratitude to Prof. Dr Urs Matthias Zachmann (Freie Universität Berlin) who since my undergraduate years has been a mentor and a role model, in matters of academic life and beyond. Prof. Dr Nakano Kōtarō from the University of Tokyo has equally inspired me during my research stays in Japan and I am ever grateful for his kindness, integrity and generosity. At Heidelberg University, where this work was originally submitted as a dissertation, Prof. Dr Hans Martin Krämer acted as my supervisor and provided me with invaluable help.

I also would like to extend my earnest appreciation to the Cluster of Excellence – ‘Asia and Europe in a Global Context’ (Heidelberg University) and the Japanese Society for the Promotion of Science for their generous financial support that enabled me to focus on my research as well as going on field trips to Japan and the United States.

At Edinburgh University Press Laura Quinn and Sam Johnson have supported me with their trust and advice. I would also like to thank the two anonymous reviewers who provided thoughtful comments on an early draft of this work.

Numerous colleagues, friends and family have made the writing of this book significantly more pleasant. I am indebted to Prof. Dr Judith Árokay, Dr Asa-Bettina Wuthenow, Imke Veit-Schirmer and Chihiro Kodama-Lambert for the kind-heartedness they have been offering me since my first steps in Heidelberg. My tutor, senpai and friend Isato has been standing at my side all these years and has helped me improve my Japanese.

My Japanese mother Keiko (and by extension the whole Yamagata family) has offered me a home when I was far from home. Never again will I meet such a kind and generous soul. My grandmother, Helene, not only nurtured my love for history but also supported me in every way possible so that I could chase an elusive dream, despite her having lost her youth to war and adulthood to work. She will never be able to hold this book in her hands, but I hope that it would have made her proud. To my mother Angelika, I can only humbly express my gratitude for everything that she has done for me.

And finally, Momoko, ma douce amie. Trying to enunciate the many ways in which she supports me would be futile. This book is dedicated to her.
