

C O N T E N T S

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	ix
INTRODUCTION	I
Modernism and African literature—In defense of totality—The eidaesthetic itinerary—The modernist sublime—The African prise de parole —All theory is postcolonial theory—Totality, allegory, and history—Utopian generations
PART ONE: SUBJECTIVITY	35
CHAPTER TWO
Ulysses: The Modernist Sublime	37
Ulysses, history, and form—Ulysses and the modernist sublime—“Eumaeus”: the sublimity of the banal and the banality of the sublime—“Ithaca”: the becoming-meaning of information and the becoming-information of meaning
CHAPTER THREE
Ambiguous Adventure: Authenticity’s Aftermath	59
Ambiguous Adventure and Modernism—Ambiguous Adventure, authenticity, and death—Heidegger as ethnophilosopher—Tempels’s Bantu and Heidegger’s Greeks—Reification and the work of the colonized—The privatization of utopia
PART TWO: HISTORY	81
CHAPTER FOUR
The Good Soldier and Parade’s End: Absolute Nostalgia	83
Why Ford Madox Ford’s novels can only be read once—Conrad, Ford, and literary impressionism—The Good Soldier: absolute nostalgia—Parade’s End: absolute and conventional nostalgia
CHAPTER FIVE
Arrow of God: The Totalizing Gaze	104
The Achebe-event—Achebe and the image of Africa—Yeats, Eliot, and Achebe: the poetics of disaster—Arrow of God as general allegory—The image of Africa revisited—Arrow of God as total allegory

PART THREE: POLITICS	125
CHAPTER SIX
The Childermass : Revolution and Reaction	127
Wyndham Lewis, fascism, and the critique of liberalism— The Childermass and revolution: the embodied cliché— The Childermass and reaction: imperialism and the strong personality—The reaction in revolution and the revolution in reaction
CHAPTER SEVEN
Ngugi wa Thiong'o and Pepetela: Revolution and Retrenchment	150
The Trial of Dedan Kimathi and the ambivalence of Mau Mau—Kamiriithu, the Kenyan theater apparatus, and the neocolonial state— A Geração da Utopia , I Will Marry When I Want , and national tragedy—A new generation of utopia: the multitude and musical form
CHAPTER EIGHT
Conclusion: Postmodernism as Semiperipheral Symptom	173
The eidaesthetic itinerary continued—bossapósbossa—The aesthetic ideology of bossa nova—Four options for cultural production on the semiperiphery—1964 and the end of modernism—Tropicália, or bread and circuses?
NOTES	201
INDEX	231