

Illustrations

FIGURE 3.1. Statue of the Four Moors in modern-day Livorno. Photo courtesy of Alinari/Art Resource; © Art Resource	83
FIGURES 4.1 and 4.2. Grand houses of Rosetta, built by Anatolian merchants in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Both photos by Tore Kjeilen and © LookLex	124
FIGURE 4.3. Harbor at Rhodes. Photo courtesy of Princeton University Library	128
FIGURE 4.4. The town of Lindos today. In the seventeenth century, mariners from Lindos ended up in front of the Tribunale degli Armamenti. Photo courtesy of Amelia Brown	130
FIGURE 5.1. Leimonos Monastery on Mytilene (Lesvos). Photo reproduced from an old postcard	147
FIGURE 6.1. Fort St. Angelo. Photo from Charles Owen, The Maltese Islands (Newton Abbot, David and Charles, 1969)	168
FIGURE 6.2. Auberge de Castile, at Merchant Street entrance. Photo from Sir Harry Luke, Malta: An account and an appreciation (London, 1949)	169
FIGURE 7.1. Kyrillos Loukaris, patriarch of Constantinople and determined protector of Greek Orthodoxy. Photo courtesy of The British Library Board. 859g19	203
FIGURE 7.2. Fabio Chigi, papal inquisitor in Malta (and future Pope Alexander VII). Photo courtesy of Art Resource	212
FIGURE 7.3. Francesco Barberini. Photo courtesy of Art Resource	213
FIGURE 7.4. Greek College in Rome and Church of Saint Athanasios in 1935. Photo from Z. N. Tsirpanles, The Greek College of Rome and Its Students (1576–1700): A Study of Vatican Cultural Policy (Thessaloniki, 1980)	221

