Contents

List of Figures ix

List of Tables xvii

Preface xix

Acknowledgments xxi

CHAPTER 1 The Trail to Mancos 3

Ethiopia 3
Ancient Cannibals? 4
Mancos Canyon 4
Overview 5

CHAPTER 2 Cannibalism Past and Present 7

Defining Cannibalism and Recognizing It in an Archaeological Context 7
Classifications of Cannibalism 12
Cannibalism and the Human Fossil Record 13
Cannibalism and the Historical Record 15
Cannibalism and the Archaeological Record 17
Assessing a Sample of Claims for Cannibalism in the Archaeological Record 18
Summary 30

CHAPTER 3 Cannibalism in the Prehistoric Southwest: Mancos 5MTUMR–2346 and Its Context 31

The Anasazi 32
Cannibalism in the Southwest: Surveying the Evidence 34
Cannibalism in the Southwest: A Synopsis 36
Mancos Canyon Site 5MTUMR–2346 40
Published Interpretations of Mancos 5MTUMR–2346 60
Postrecovery History of the Mancos Assemblage 63
Summary 63

CHAPTER 4 Analytical Background and Conjoining 65

Analytical Background 65
Background to the Conjoining Study 67
Previous Conjoining Studies 68
The Mancos Canyon 5MTUMR–2346 Conjoining Exercise 69
Conjoining Results: A Quantitative Assessment 72
Conjoining Results: Enhancing Specimen Identification 77
Conjoining Results: Spatial, Temporal, and Behavioral Implications 77
Conjoining Bone Assemblages: Costs and Benefits 83

CHAPTER 5 The Mancos 5MTUMR–2346 Sample: A Biological Background 84

The Minimum Number of Individuals: Background 84
The Minimum Number of Individuals in the Mancos 5MTUMR–2346 Assemblage 86
Demography 89
Artificial Deformation and Pathology 94
Affinity 96
Summary 99

CHAPTER 6 Method and Theory: Physical Anthropology Meets Zooarchaeology 100

Integrating Zooarchaeology and Physical Anthropology 100
Limitations of the Mancos Assemblage 102
Analytical Procedures: Some Initial Considerations 104
Analytical Background and Definitions 106
Parts and Attributes: A Review 107
Analytical Conditions 109
Identification 111
Preservation 118
Fracture 131
Tool-Induced Modifications: Cutmarks, Chopmarks, and Scrapemarks 143
Mammalian Chewing 152
Burning 156
Specimen Dimensions 160
A Preliminary Summary of Trauma to the Mancos 5MTUMR–2346 Bones 162

CHAPTER 7 The Head 164

The Skull: An Introduction 166
Frontal 167
Parietals 172

Occipital 179
Temporal 184
Sphenoid 188
Zygomatic 189
Nasals 191
Maxillae 192
Mandible 195
Dentition 201
Head Processing: An Interpretive Summary 204

CHAPTER 8 The Thorax, Pelvis, and Shoulder Girdle 208

Hyoid 208
Atlas 208
Axis 211
Cervical Vertebrae Numbers 3–7 211
Thoracic Vertebrae 213
Lumbar Vertebrae 215
Sacral Vertebrae and Coccyx 216
Os Coxae 217
First Ribs 221
Ribs 2–12 222
Sternum 228
Clavicle 228
Scapula 233
Trunk Processing: An Interpretive Summary 236

CHAPTER 9 The Arm 238

Humerus 238
Ulna 242
Radius 245
Arm Processing: An Interpretive Summary 248

CHAPTER 10 The Leg 250

Femur 250
Patella 257
Tibia 259
Fibula 262
Leg Processing: An Interpretive Summary 267

CHAPTER 11 The Hand and Foot 268

Carpals 268
Metacarpals 268
Hand Phalanges 271
Hand Processing: An Interpretive Summary 272

Calcaneus and Talus 273
Other Tarsals 273
Metatarsals 274
Foot Phalanges 275
Foot Processing: An Interpretive Summary 277

CHAPTER 12 Comparative Analysis 278

The Comparative Background 279
Identity and Survival 289
Fracture 314
Tool Modification 323
Mammalian Chewing 332
Burning 335

CHAPTER 13 Evaluation 337

Evidence for Cannibalism 337
Zooarchaeological Implications 344
The Regional Perspective 346
Other Possible Cases 351
Explaining the Patterns 355
Further Research 364

APPENDIX 1 Catalog of Southwest Archaeological Sites with Evidence Interpreted as Indicating Cannibalism 367

APPENDIX 2 Mancos 5MTUMR–2346 Human Bone Specimen Databases 382

APPENDIX 3 Procedures for the Recovery and Analysis of Broken and Scattered Human Bone from Archaeological and Forensic Contexts 422

Bibliography 427

Index 459