

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Abbreviations	xi
INTRODUCTION Poets and Goatherds, Forests and Consuls: Art, Imagination, and Realism in Ancient Pastoral Poetry	3
1. "Since Daphnis Dies": The Meaning of Theocritus' First Idyll	25
2. Death by Water: A Narrative Pattern in Theocritus (Idylls 1, 13, 22, 23)	47
3. Adonis and Aphrodite: Theocritus, Idyll 3.48	66
4. Simaetha and the Iynx (Theocritus, Idyll 2)	73
5. Theocritean Criticism and the Interpretation of the Fourth Idyll	85
6. Theocritus' Seventh Idyll and Lycidas	110
7. Simichidas' Modesty: Theocritus, Idyll 7.44	167
8. Thematic Coherence in Theocritus' Bucolic Idylls	176
9. Landscape into Myth: Theocritus' Bucolic Poetry	210
10. Virgil's Caelatum Opus : An Interpretation of the Third Eclogue	235
11. Pastoral Realism and the Golden Age: Correspondence and Contrast between Virgil's Third and Fourth Eclogues	265
12. Tamen Cantabitis, Arcades : Exile and Arcadia in Eclogues 1 and 9	271
13. Virgil's Sixth Eclogue and the Problem of Evil	301
14. Two Fauns and a Naiad? (Virgil, Ecl. 6.13-26)	330
15. Caves, Pan, and Silenus: Virgil's Sixth Eclogue and the Pastoral Epigrams of Theocritus	336
Index	341

