

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	vii
ABBREVIATIONS	x
INTRODUCTION	xix
The Concerns of This Book	xix
The Structure of This Study	xxiv
Some Limitations of This Study: Problems of Data and Interpretation	xxvii
MAP	xxxviii

PART ONE

Revolution and Tradition: The Initial Confrontation

ONE • IMPOSING A STRUCTURE OF POWER IN CENTRAL ASIA: THE DETERMINANTS OF SOVIET SUCCESS	3
The Setting: An Overview	3
The Soviet Conquest: Conditioning Factors	7
Primordial Cleavages and Conflicts	9
Tsarist Imperial Politics	14
Native Elite Orientations in a Revolutionary Era	21
Princely-Theocratic and Tribal Elites	22
Religious Elites	26
Secular Elites	30
Discontinuity between Local Concerns and Supra-Communal Issues: General Implications	36
TWO • PROBLEMS OF ACCESS AND INFLUENCE IN A TRADITIONAL MILIEU: THE QUEST FOR STRATEGIC LEVERAGE POINTS	38
Problems of Access and Influence: The Relevance of Leninism	38
The Specter of a Chartless Voyage	41
The Specter of General Indifference	43
The Specter of Political Reductionism	45
	xiii

Contents

The Specter of Economic Exploitation	48
The Specter of Coercion and Rebellion	49
Problems of Access and Influence: Initial Approaches	55
Constitutional Engineering	58
Environmental Engineering	63
Organizational Engineering	66
The Quest for Leverage: The Relevance of "Action from Above"	75
The Quest for Leverage: The Imperatives of "Action in Depth"	84

PART TWO

Justification for Action: The Potential Use of Women in Revolutionary Transformation

THREE • MOSLEM WOMEN AS A SURROGATE PROLETARIAT: SOVIET PERCEPTIONS OF FEMALE INFERIORITY	93
Toward a Vision of a Surrogate Proletariat	93
The Catalogue and Imagery of Female Inferiority	96
Education	97
Economic Activities	98
Social Participation	101
Family Life	109
The Consequences	120
The Implications	123
FOUR • FEMALE INFERIORITY AND RADICAL SOCIAL CHANGE: SOVIET PERCEPTIONS OF THE REVOLUTIONARY POTENTIAL OF WOMEN	128
Revolutionary Action as Activation of a Surrogate Proletariat: Some Implicit Soviet Assumptions	128
The Action-Scheme: Soviet Perceptions of Operational Imperatives and Opportunities	131
Libertarian and Humanitarian Implications	133
Implications for Traditional Authority Relations	141
Effects on Kinship and Community	149
Effects on Religion and Custom	156
Implications for Property Relations	160
Implications for Recruitment of Labor and Technical Cadres	164

Implications for Recruitment of Political and Politically Relevant Cadres	171
Implications for Revolutionary Potentials Abroad	180

PART THREE

Early Soviet Actions, 1924–1927

INTRODUCTION · TOWARD A STRATEGY OF ENGINEERED REVOLUTION	185
Revolutionary Action as Insurgency by an Incumbent	185
Alternatives for a Strategy of Engineered Revolution: Revolutionary Legalism, Administrative Assault, and Systematic Social Engineering	186
FIVE · TOWARD RADICAL JUDICIAL REFORM: THE PATTERN OF REVOLUTIONARY LEGALISM	192
Determinants and Objectives	192
The Drive Against Traditional Legal Structures	196
The Drive Against Traditional Legal Norms	200
SIX · TOWARD CULTURAL REVOLUTION BY DECREE: THE PATTERN OF ADMINISTRATIVE ASSAULT	213
Determinants and Objectives	213
The Promise of Head-On Assault	214
The Danger of Competitive Models	218
The Danger of Subversive Superstructures	220
Khudzhum : Head-On Assault on Customs and Taboos	226
Preparations for the Campaign	227
The First Phase	233
The Second Phase	239

PART FOUR

Responses and Outcomes, 1925–1929

INTRODUCTION · HERETICAL MODELS AND THE MANAGEMENT OF INDUCED TENSIONS	249
Revolutionary Action as a Tension-Management System	249
Legalism and Assault as Heretical Models	249
Responses and Outcomes: Problems of Assessment	253

Contents

SEVEN • PATTERNS OF POPULAR RESPONSE:
IMPLICATIONS OF TENSION-INDUCING ACTION	256
Patterns of Popular Response: Females	257
Avoidance	257
Selective Participation	259
Militant Self-Assertion	260
Uncontrolled Involvement	265
Patterns of Popular Response: Males	266
Evasion	266
Selective Accommodation	269
Limited Retribution	274
Massive Backlash	275
EIGHT • PATTERNS OF INSTITUTIONAL PERFORMANCE:
IMPLICATIONS OF TENSION-CONTROLLING ACTION	285
Soviet Administrative Apparatus: Native Personnel
Behavior	286
Circumlocution	286
Selective Cooperation	289
Sabotage	295
Uncontrolled Self-Indulgence	302
Soviet Administrative Apparatus: Non-Native Personnel
Behavior	304
Dissonant Improvisation	305
Selective Enforcement	308
Limited Retaliation	310
Massive Repression	311
NINE • REASSESSMENT AND RETRENCHMENT: FROM LEGALISM AND ASSAULT TO SYSTEMATIC SOCIAL
ENGINEERING	322
Reassessment: Implications of Massive Enforcement and
Repression	322
Retrenchment: Toward Systematic Social Engineering	335
The Pattern of Retrenchment	336
Sanctions	336
Reprisals	340
Divorce	344
Unveiling	346
Role of the Zhenotdel and Related Associations	355

Contents

New Social Infrastructure and “Systematic Work”	359
The criterion of voluntarism	368
The criterion of “mass” versus “class”	369
The criterion of functional diversity and integration	370
The criterion of practicality and relevance	373
The criterion of political utility	377
The criterion of selective and segregated cadre formation	378
The criterion of graduated mobilization and socialization	382
The criterion of self-liquidation	385
Reassessment and Retrenchment: General Implications	386
TEN • SUMMARY AND CONCLUSION: REFLECTIONS ON THE LIMITS OF LEGALISM AND ASSAULT AS REVOLUTIONARY STRATEGIES	390
BIBLIOGRAPHY	412
INDEX	432

