

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Performing Memory, Transforming Time: History and Indigenous North American Drama Birgit Däwes	1
PART I. INDIGENOUS NORTH AMERICAN PERFORMANCE: SURVEYS AND METHODOLOGIES
Chapter 1 A Short History of Native Canadian Theatre Henning Schäfer	19
Chapter 2 Native American Drama: A Historical Survey Ann Haugo	39
Chapter 3 Burning Texts: Indigenous Dramaturgy on the Continent of Life Tamara Underiner	63
PART II. INDIVIDUAL HI/STORIES: VISIONS, PRACTICE, EXPERIENCE
Chapter 4 Coyote Transforming: Visions of Native American Theatre Rolland Meinholtz	77
Chapter 5 From SALVAGE to Salvage: The Restoration of What Is Left Diane Glancy	99

Chapter 6
“Shakes Spear” Isn’t an Indian Name?	107
Daniel David Moses
Chapter 7
Theatre: Younger Brother of Tradition	115
Floyd Favel
Chapter 8
Chocolate Woman Dreams the Milky Way	123
Monique Mojica
Chapter 9
“I don’t write Native stories, I write universal stories”:
An Interview with Tomson Highway	141
Birgit Däwes
PART III. REPRESENTATIONS OF HISTORY: CRITICAL PERSPECTIVES
Chapter 10
Voices of Cultural Memory: Enacting History in Recent Native Canadian Drama	159
Marc Maufort
Chapter 11
“If you remember me . . .”: Memory and Remembrance in Monique Mojica’s Birdwoman and the Suffragettes	177
Günter Beck
Chapter 12
Translating Ab-Originality: Canadian Aboriginal Dramatic Texts in the Context of Central European Theatre	191
Klára Kolinská
Works Cited	205
Contributors	219
Index	225