

Contents

List of Images	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
1 A Nation Turns Inward: The Setting of Economic and Artistic Postwar Britain	11
2 “Fog in Channel, Continent Cut Off”: Postwar British Filmmakers Look Inward	35
3 The Great Bloodless Revolution: Postwar British Film and the Ealing Satires (to 1949)	51
4 The Ealing Satires’ Annus Mirabilis (1949)	61
5 Ealing at a Turning Point (1949 and After)	87
6 The Special Relationship: American Satires of the 1940s	115
7 Postwar Britain Faces Its Subconscious: Spike Milligan and the Goons’ Postmodern Schizophrenia	145
8 The Post-1950s Satire Boom: Satire Explodes into Late Twentieth-Century British and American Popular Culture	177

Epilogue	203
Notes	213
Works Cited	251
Index	259