

Illustrations

Figure 2.1	Román fills up the visual field, showing the bedroom as a scene of implicit violence and fear. Courtesy of Centro de Capacitación Cinematográfica.	73
Figure 2.2	Romelia walks hand in hand with her granddaughter, Romi, a reconciliation between generations of women. Courtesy of Centro de Capacitación Cinematográfica.	77
Figure 3.1	Adrián and his psychic double, Pancho Villa, enact a fantasy of violence.	115
Figure 4.1	Oshi's photos of her immigrant family upon arrival in Mexico. Courtesy of Guita Schyfter.	149
Figure 4.2	Rifke engages in social protest, defying family expectations and embodying the changing roles of women as political actors. Courtesy of Guita Schyfter.	155
Figure 4.3	The Jewish struggle for a homeland is connected to the leftist struggles of Latin America. Courtesy of Guita Schyfter.	156
Figure 5.1	A shackled and smiling Esmeralda defies normative heterosexual marriage, attempting to marry her 6th husband.	188
Figure 5.2	Esmeralda is fêted by the crowd. Her "struggle" is adopted by feminists and AIDS activists alike.	211
Figure C.1	Romantic love between men on screen in Julián Hernández's El cielo dividido . Courtesy of Mil Nubes Cine.	218

Figure C.2 Questioning compulsory heterosexuality in Julián Hernández's Rabioso sol, rabioso cielo. Courtesy of Mil Nubes Cine.

218