

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

For a project about voyaging one makes a voyage, and the beginning of this one was a long time ago. I am grateful to many generous souls now lost: the late Kenneth Boulding (Ann Arbor), the late Dennis Brisset (Buffalo), the late Henry Bumstead (San Marino), the late Herbert Coleman (Los Angeles), the late Guy Davenport (Lexington), the late “Doc” Erickson (Los Angeles), the late Edgar Z. Friedenberg (Buffalo), the late Erving Goffman (Philadelphia), the late Martin Gold (Plymouth, Michigan), the late Assheton Gorton (Montgomery, Wales), the late Max Lerner (New York), the late Paul Gary Levy (Hamilton), the late Talcott Parsons (Cambridge), the late Victor Perkins (Coventry), the late Rabbi Stuart Rosenberg (Toronto), the late Rabbi Eugene Weiner (Hamilton; New York), the late Norman Lloyd (Los Angeles) . . .

. . . and to many colleagues and friends who, thriving upon cinema as I feel I do, nourished this book, each in a unique way: Merle Benjamin (Toronto), Adam Brown (Toronto), Dan Cazzola (Santa Monica), Alex Clayton (Bristol), Tom and Verena Andermatt Conley (Cambridge), Gary Michael Dault (Hamilton), David Edelberg, M.D. (Chicago), Blake Fitzpatrick (Toronto), Jay Glickman (Albuquerque), Gayatri Gorton (Montgomery), Elliott Gould (Los Angeles), Tom Gunning (Chicago), Barbara Hall (Los Angeles), Tom Hemingway (Coventry), Christopher Husted (Los Angeles), Jason Jacobs (Brisbane), Steven Jacobs (Ghent), Ann Kaplan (New York), Mark Kermode (Hampshire), Andrew Klevan (Oxford), Bill Krohn (Long Beach), James Lawson (Vancouver), Matthew Leggatt (Verwood), Gillian Leslie (Edinburgh), Dario Llinares (Brighton), John Long (Buffalo), Douglas and Catherine McFarland (San Francisco), Stephen Miller (Manhattan), Jerry Mosher (Long Beach), Stephen Rebello

(Pasadena), Jenny Romero (Los Angeles), Bill Rothman (Miami), Fay Thompson (Los Angeles), Peter Treherne (London), Daniel Varndell (Southampton), Christina Wilkins (Winchester). Various forms of assistance came by way of institutions: Susan Halpert at Houghton Library, Harvard, Louise Hilton at the Margaret Herrick Library (Beverly Hills), staff at the McElroy Octagon House (San Francisco), and staff at The Winchester Book Shop (Winchester).

My colleagues and friends at SUNY Press have been their usual sprightly, amicable, talented, and very considerate selves. I thank Michael Campochiaro, Ryan Morris, James Peltz, Eric Schramm, and Aimee Harrison. And as we see in all the films examined here, no voyage is truly wonderful without the very best companionship, in my case that of Nellie Perret and Ariel Pomerance who always find the best star to navigate by.
